Catheter Connections earns sixth patent

Catheter Connections, a Utah company founded by nurses seeking to reduce hospital-acquired bloodstream infections, said it has been issued a patent that broadly covers its technology for disinfecting the connectors at the ends of IV tubing. It is the sixth patent for the company.

Headwaters sells coal cleaning plants

Headwaters, a Utah building products company, has completed the sale of eight coal cleaning facilities to Bowie Refined Coal. Proceeds include $3.8 million in cash at closing with $10 million to be paid by the end of 2013. The plants address problems associated with more than 6,000 massive heaps of low-grade coal known as "gob piles" found in mining regions throughout the country.

Existing home sales down in December

Sales of previously occupied homes dipped in December from November, in part because of a limited supply of available homes.

The Super Bowl 2013 Coca Cola ad campaign, Instagram, is the beverage maker's latest.
